Plaintiffs Mary Lou Pett (“Plaintiff Pett”), Kathleen Fick-Gee (“Plaintiff Fick-Gee”), Diane Bryce (“Plaintiff Bryce”), Patti DelValle (“Plaintiff DelValle”), Michelle Holcomb (“Plaintiff Holcomb”), Kim Readus (“Plaintiff Readus”), Alice Reese (“Plaintiff Reese”), Erika Van Aller (“Plaintiff Van Aller”), and Linda White (“Plaintiff White”) (collectively, “Plaintiffs”), individually and on behalf of all others similarly situated, by and through their attorneys, make the following allegations pursuant to the investigation of their counsel and based upon information and belief, except as to allegations specifically pertaining to themselves and their counsel, which are based on personal knowledge.

INTRODUCTION

1. Defendant Publishers Clearing House, Inc. (“PCH”) rented, exchanged, and/or otherwise disclosed detailed information about Plaintiffs’ purchases of written materials, sound recordings, and/or video recordings, including magazine subscriptions, to data aggregators, data appenders, data cooperatives, and list brokers, among others, which in turn disclosed their information to aggressive advertisers, political organizations, and non-profit companies. As a result, Plaintiffs have received a barrage of unwanted junk mail. By renting, exchanging, and/or otherwise disclosing Plaintiffs’ Private Purchase Information (defined below) during the relevant pre-July 31, 2016 time period¹, PCH violated Michigan’s Preservation of Personal Privacy Act, H.B. 5331, 84th Leg. Reg. Sess., P.A. No. 378, §§ 1-4 (Mich. 1988), id. § 5, added by H.B. 4694, 85th Leg. Reg. Sess., P.A. No. 206, § 1 (Mich. 1989) (the “PPPA”).²

¹ The statutory period for this action is six years. See M.C.L. § 600.5813.

² In May 2016, the Michigan legislature amended the PPPA. See S.B. 490, 98th Leg., Reg. Sess., P.A. No. 92 (Mich. 2016) (codified at M.C.L. § 445.1711, et seq.). The May 2016 amendment to the PPPA, which became effective on July 31, 2016, does not apply retroactively to claims that accrued prior to its July 31, 2016 effective date. See Boelter v. Hearst Commc’ns, Inc., 192 F. Supp. 3d 427, 439-41 (S.D.N.Y. 2016) (holding that “the amendment to the [PP]PA does not apply to Plaintiffs’ claims, and the Court will assess the sufficiency of those claims under the law as it was when Plaintiffs’ claims accrued.”) (citing Landgraf v. USI Film Prods., 511 U.S. 224, 286 (1994)). Because the claims alleged herein accrued, and thus vested, prior to the July 31, 2016 effective date of the amended version of the PPPA, the pre-

4. By renting, exchanging, or otherwise disclosing the Private Purchase Information of its Michigan-based customers during the relevant pre-July 31, 2016 time period, PCH violated the PPPA. Subsection 2 of the PPPA provides:

[A] person, or an employee or agent of the person, engaged in the business of selling at retail, renting, or lending books or other written materials, sound recordings, or video recordings shall not disclose to any person, other than the customer, a record or information concerning the purchase, lease, rental, or borrowing of those materials by a customer that indicates the identity of the customer.

PPPA § 2.

5. Accordingly, Plaintiffs bring this First Amended Class Action Complaint against PCH for its intentional and unlawful disclosure of its customers' Private Purchase Information in violation of the PPPA.

NATURE OF THE CASE

6. To supplement its revenues, PCH rents, exchanges, or otherwise discloses its customers' information—including their full names, titles of the written materials (i.e., magazines, books, journals, newsletters, or newspapers) and/or audiovisual materials (i.e., sound recordings, including music or audiobooks, and video recordings, including television shows or movies) they purchased, and home addresses (collectively "Private Purchase Information"), as well as myriad other categories of individualized data and demographic information such as gender—to data aggregators, data appenders, data cooperatives, and other third parties without the written consent of its customers.

7. By renting, exchanging, or otherwise disclosing – rather than selling – its customers' Private Purchase Information, PCH is able to disclose the information time and time again to countless third parties.

8. PCH's disclosure of Private Purchase Information and other individualized information is not only unlawful, but also dangerous because it allows for the targeting of particularly vulnerable members of society.

9. While PCH profits handsomely from the unauthorized rental, exchange, and/or disclosure of its customers' Private Purchase Information and other individualized information, it does so at the expense of its customers' statutory privacy rights (afforded by the PPPA) because PCH does not obtain its customers' written consent prior to disclosing their Private Purchase Information.

PARTIES

10. Plaintiff Pett is a natural person and citizen of the State of Michigan and resides in Auburn Hills, Michigan. Plaintiff Pett purchased written materials, sound recordings, and/or video recordings sold by PCH, including but not limited to subscriptions to magazines, prior to July 31, 2016. Moreover, during that same period, PCH rented or exchanged mailing lists containing Plaintiff Pett's Private Purchase Information to third parties seeking to contact PCH customers, without first obtaining the requisite written consent from Plaintiff Pett or even giving her prior notice of the rentals, exchanges, and/or other disclosures.

Prior to and at the time Plaintiff DelValle purchased such products (including magazine subscriptions) from PCH, PCH did not notify Plaintiff DelValle that it discloses the Private Purchase

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

20. This Court has subject matter jurisdiction over this civil action pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d) because there are more than 100 class members and the aggregate amount in controversy exceeds $5,000,000, exclusive of interest, fees, and costs, and at least one Class member is a citizen of a state different from Defendant.

21. The Court has personal jurisdiction over PCH because Plaintiffs' claims arose in substantial part from actions and omissions in Michigan, including from Plaintiffs' purchases of written and audio-visual materials from PCH in Michigan, PCH's direction of such products into Michigan, and PCH's failure to obtain Plaintiffs' written consent in Michigan prior to disclosing their Private Purchase Information, including their residential addresses in Michigan, to another person, the effects of which were felt from within Michigan by citizens and residents of Michigan. Personal jurisdiction also exists over PCH in Michigan because PCH conducts substantial business within Michigan, such that PCH has significant, continuous, and pervasive contacts with the State of Michigan.

22. Venue is proper in this District pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1391 because at least one of the Plaintiffs resides in this judicial District, PCH does substantial business in this judicial District, PCH is subject to personal jurisdiction in this judicial District, and a substantial part of the events giving rise to Plaintiffs' claims took place within this judicial District.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Michigan's Preservation of Personal Privacy Act

23. In 1988, members of the United States Senate warned that records of consumers' purchases and rentals of audiovisual and publication materials offer "a window into our loves, likes, and dislikes," and that "the trail of information generated by every transaction that is now recorded and stored in sophisticated record-keeping systems is a new, more subtle and pervasive form of surveillance." S. Rep. No. 100-599 at 7–8 (1988) (statements of Sens. Simon and Leahy, respectively).

24. Recognizing the need to further protect its citizens' privacy rights, Michigan's legislature enacted the PPPA to protect "privacy with respect to the purchase, rental, or borrowing of certain materials," by prohibiting companies from disclosing certain types of sensitive consumer information. H.B. No. 5331, 1988 Mich. Legis. Serv. 378 (West).

25. Subsection 2 of the PPPA states:

[A] person, or an employee or agent of the person, engaged in the business of selling at retail, renting, or lending books or other written materials . . . shall not disclose to any person, other than the customer, a record or information concerning the purchase . . . of those materials by a customer that indicates the identity of the customer.

PPPA § 2 (emphasis added).

26. Michigan’s protection of reading, listening, and viewing information reflects the “gut feeling that people ought to be able to read books and watch films without the whole world knowing,” and recognizes that “[b]ooks and films are the intellectual vitamins that fuel the growth of individual thought. The whole process of intellectual growth is one of privacy—of quiet, and reflection. This intimate process should be protected from the disruptive intrusion of a roving eye.” S. Rep. No. 100–599, at 6 (Statement of Rep. McCandless).

27. As Senator Patrick Leahy recognized in proposing the Video and Library Privacy Protection Act (later codified as the Video Privacy Protection Act, 18 U.S.C. § 2710), “[i]n practical terms our right to privacy protects the choice of movies that we watch with our family in our own homes. And it protects the selection of books that we choose to read.” 134 Cong. Rec. S5399 (May 10, 1988).

28. Senator Leahy also explained why choices in movies, music, and reading materials are so private: “These activities . . . reveal our likes and dislikes, our interests and our whims. They say a great deal about our dreams and ambitions, our fears and our hopes. They reflect our individuality, and they describe us as people.” Id.

29. Michigan’s passage of the PPPA also established as a matter of law “that a person’s choice in reading, music, and video entertainment is a private matter, and not a fit subject for consideration by gossipy publications, employers, clubs, or anyone else for that matter.” Privacy: Sales, Rentals of Videos, etc., House Legislative Analysis Section, H.B. No. 5331, Jan. 20, 1989 (attached hereto as Exhibit C).

30. Despite the fact that thousands of Michigan residents have purchased written materials and other audiovisual materials from PCH, PCH disregarded its legal responsibilities to these individuals by systematically violating the PPPA.

The Private Information Market:
Consumers’ Private Information Has Real Value

31. In 2001, Federal Trade Commission (“FTC”) Commissioner Orson Swindle remarked that “the digital revolution . . . has given an enormous capacity to the acts of collecting and transmitting and flowing of information, unlike anything we’ve ever seen in our lifetimes . . . [and] individuals are concerned about being defined by the existing data on themselves.”³

32. More than a decade later, Commissioner Swindle’s comments ring truer than ever, as consumer data feeds an information marketplace that supports a $26 billion dollar per year online advertising industry in the United States.⁴

33. The FTC has also recognized that consumer data possesses inherent monetary value within the new information marketplace and publicly stated that:

Most consumers cannot begin to comprehend the types and amount of information collected by businesses, or why their information may be commercially valuable. Data is currency. The larger the data set, the greater potential for analysis—and profit.⁵

34. In fact, an entire industry exists while companies known as data aggregators purchase, trade, and collect massive databases of information about consumers. Data aggregators then profit by selling this “extraordinarily intrusive” information in an open and largely unregulated market.⁶

35. The scope of data aggregators’ knowledge about consumers is immense: “If you are an American adult, the odds are that [they] know[] things like

36. Further, “[a]s use of the Internet has grown, the data broker industry has already evolved to take advantage of the increasingly specific pieces of information about consumers that are now available.”⁸

37. Recognizing the serious threat the data mining industry poses to consumers’ privacy, on July 25, 2012, the co-Chairmen of the Congressional Bi-Partisan Privacy Caucus sent a letter to nine major data brokerage companies seeking information on how those companies collect, store, and sell their massive collections of consumer data.⁹

38. In their letter, the co-Chairmen recognized that “[b]y combining data from numerous offline and online sources, data brokers have developed hidden dossiers on every U.S. consumer,” which “raises a number of serious privacy concerns.”¹⁰

39. Data aggregation is especially troublesome when consumer information is sold to direct-mail advertisers. In addition to causing waste and inconvenience, direct-mail advertisers often use consumer information to lure unsuspecting consumers into various scams,¹¹ including fraudulent sweepstakes, charities, and buying clubs. Thus, when companies like PCH share information with data aggregators, data cooperatives, and direct-mail advertisers, they contribute to the “[v]ast databases” of consumer data that are often “sold to thieves by large publicly traded companies,” which “put[s] almost anyone within the reach of fraudulent telemarketers” and other criminals.¹²

40. Information disclosures like those made by PCH are particularly dangerous to the elderly. “Older Americans are perfect telemarketing customers, analysts say, because they are often at home, rely on delivery services, and are lonely for the companionship that telephone callers provide.”¹³ The FTC notes that “[t]he elderly often are the deliberate targets of fraudulent telemarketers who take advantage of the fact that many older people have cash reserves or other assets to spend on seemingly attractive offers.”¹⁴ Indeed, an entire black market exists where the private information of vulnerable elderly Americans is exchanged.

41. Thus, information disclosures like PCH’s are particularly troublesome because of their cascading nature: “Once marked as receptive to [a specific] type of spam, a consumer is often bombarded with similar fraudulent offers from a host of scam artists.”¹⁵

42. PCH is not alone in jeopardizing its customers’ privacy and well-being in exchange for increased revenue: disclosing customer information to data aggregators, data appenders, data cooperatives, direct marketers, and other third parties is a widespread practice in the publishing, music, and movie industries.

43. Thus, as consumer data has become an ever-more valuable commodity, the data mining industry has experienced rapid and massive growth.

Unfortunately for consumers, this growth has come at the expense of their most basic privacy rights.

Consumers Place Monetary Value on Their Privacy and Consider Privacy Practices When Making Purchases

44. As the data aggregation and cooperative industry has grown, so too have consumer concerns regarding the privacy of their information.

45. A recent survey conducted by Harris Interactive on behalf of TRUSTe, Inc. showed that 89 percent of consumers polled avoid doing business with companies who they believe do not protect their privacy online.¹⁶ As a result, 81 percent of smartphone users polled said that they avoid using smartphone apps that they don't believe protect their privacy online.¹⁷

46. Thus, as consumer privacy concerns grow, consumers are increasingly incorporating privacy concerns and values into their purchasing decisions and companies viewed as having weaker privacy protections are forced to offer greater value elsewhere (through better quality and/or lower prices) than their privacy-protective competitors.

47. In fact, consumers' private information has become such a valuable commodity that companies are beginning to offer individuals the opportunity to sell their information themselves.¹⁸

48. These companies' business models capitalize on a fundamental tenet underlying the consumer information marketplace: consumers recognize the economic value of their private data. Research shows that consumers are willing to pay a premium to purchase services from companies that adhere to more stringent policies of protecting their data.¹⁹

49. Thus, in today's economy, individuals and businesses alike place a real, quantifiable value on consumer data and corresponding privacy rights.²⁰

It is obvious that people value online privacy.").

50. PCH maintains a vast digital database comprised of its customers' Private Purchase Information. PCH discloses its customers' Private Purchase Information to data aggregators and appenders, who then supplement that information with additional sensitive private information about each PCH customer, including his or her gender. (See, e.g., Exhibits A & B).

51. PCH then rents and/or exchanges its mailing lists—which include its customers' Private Purchase Information identifying which individuals purchased particular written materials (i.e., magazines, books, journals, newsletters, and newspapers) and audiovisual materials (i.e., sound recordings, including music and audiobooks, and video recordings, including television shows and movies), and can include the sensitive information obtained from data aggregators and appenders—to other data aggregators and appenders, other consumer-facing businesses, non-profit organizations seeking to raise awareness and solicit donations, and to political organizations soliciting donations, votes, and volunteer efforts. (See Exhibits A & B).

52. PCH also discloses its customers' Private Purchase Information to data cooperatives, who in turn give PCH access to their own mailing list databases.

53. As a result of PCH's data compiling and sharing practices, companies can purchase and/or obtain mailing lists from PCH that identify PCH's customers by their most intimate details such as their reading, viewing, and listening habits and their gender. PCH's disclosures of such sensitive and private information puts consumers, especially the more vulnerable members of society, at risk of serious harm from scammers.

54. PCH does not seek its customers' prior consent, written or otherwise, to any of these disclosures and its customers remain unaware that their Private Purchase Information and other sensitive information is being rented and exchanged on the open market.

55. Consumers can purchase written materials (i.e., magazines, books, journals, newsletters, and newspapers) and audiovisual materials (i.e., sound recordings, including music and audiobooks, and video recordings, including television shows and movies) from PCH through numerous media outlets, including the Internet, telephone, or traditional mail. Regardless of how the consumer makes a purchase, PCH has never required the individual to read or affirmatively agree to any terms of service, privacy policy, or information-sharing policy during the relevant pre-July 31, 2016 time period. Consequently, during the relevant pre-July 31, 2016 time period, PCH uniformly failed to obtain any form of consent from – or even provide effective notice to – its customers before disclosing their Private Purchase Information.

56. As a result, PCH disclosed its customers' Private Purchase Information – including their reading, viewing, and listening habits and preferences that can “reveal intimate facts about our lives, from our political and religious beliefs to our health concerns”²¹ – to anybody willing to pay for it.

57. By and through these actions, PCH has intentionally disclosed to third parties its Michigan customers’ Private Purchase Information without consent, in direct violation of the PPPA.

CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS

58. Plaintiffs seek to represent a class defined as all Michigan residents who, at any point during the relevant pre-July 31, 2016 time period, had their Private Purchase Information disclosed to third parties by PCH without consent (the “Class”). Excluded from the Class is any entity in which Defendant has a controlling interest, and officers or directors of Defendant.

59. Members of the Class are so numerous that their individual joinder herein is impracticable. On information and belief, members of the Class number in the thousands. The precise number of Class members and their identities are unknown to Plaintiffs at this time but may be determined through discovery. Class members may be notified of the pendency of this action by mail and/or publication through the distribution records of Defendant.

60. Common questions of law and fact exist as to all Class members and predominate over questions affecting only individual Class members. Common legal and factual questions include, but are not limited to: (a) whether PCH is a “retailer or distributor” of written materials (i.e., magazines, books, journals, newsletters, and newspapers) and audiovisual materials (i.e., sound recordings, including music and audiobooks, and video recordings, including television shows and movies); (b) whether PCH obtained consent before disclosing to third parties Plaintiffs’ and the Class’s Private Purchase Information; and (c) whether PCH’s disclosure of Plaintiffs’ and the Class’s Private Purchase Information violated the PPPA.

61. The claims of the named Plaintiffs are typical of the claims of the Class in that the named Plaintiffs and the Class suffered invasions of their statutorily protected right to privacy (as afforded by the PPPA) as a result of Defendant’s uniform wrongful conduct, based upon Defendant’s disclosures of Plaintiffs’ and the Class’s Private Purchase Information.

62. Plaintiffs are adequate representatives of the Class because their interests do not conflict with the interests of the Class members they seek to represent, they have retained competent counsel experienced in prosecuting class actions, and they intend to prosecute this action vigorously. The interests of Class members will be fairly and adequately protected by Plaintiffs and their counsel.

63. The class mechanism is superior to other available means for the fair and efficient adjudication of the claims of Class members. Each individual Class member may lack the resources to undergo the burden and expense of individual prosecution of the complex and extensive litigation necessary to establish Defendant's liability. Individualized litigation increases the delay and expense to all parties and multiplies the burden on the judicial system presented by the complex legal and factual issues of this case. Individualized litigation also presents a potential for inconsistent or contradictory judgments. In contrast, the class action device presents far fewer management difficulties and provides the benefits of single adjudication, economy of scale, and comprehensive supervision by a single court on the issue of Defendant's liability. Class treatment of the liability issues will ensure that all claims and claimants are before this Court for consistent adjudication of the liability issues.

CAUSE OF ACTION

Violation of Michigan's Preservation of Personal Privacy Act
(PPPA § 2)

64. Plaintiffs repeat the allegations contained in the foregoing paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

65. Plaintiffs bring this claim individually and on behalf of members of the Class against Defendant PCH.

66. As a company that sells magazine subscriptions, journals, newsletters, newspapers, books, music, audiobooks, and videos (including movies and television shows) directly to consumers, PCH is engaged in the business of selling written materials, sound recordings, and video recordings at retail. See PPPA § 2.

67. By purchasing subscriptions to magazines and/or books from PCH, Plaintiffs and Class members purchased written materials directly from PCH. See PPPA § 2.

68. By purchasing videos and music from PCH, Plaintiffs and Class members purchased video recordings and sound recordings directly from PCH. See id.

69. Because Plaintiffs and Class members purchased written materials, video recordings, and/or sound recordings directly from PCH, they are each a “customer” within the meaning of the PPPA. See PPPA § 1.

70. At various times during the pre-July 31, 2016 time period, PCH disclosed Plaintiffs’ and Class members’ Private Purchase Information, which identified each of them as a customer who purchased particular written materials, sound recordings, and/or video recordings, in at least three ways.

71. First, PCH disclosed mailing lists containing Plaintiffs’ and the Class’s Private Purchase Information to data aggregators and data appenders, who then supplemented the mailing lists with additional sensitive information from their own databases, before sending the mailing lists back to PCH.

72. Second, PCH disclosed mailing lists containing Plaintiffs’ and the Class's Private Purchase Information to data cooperatives, who in turn gave PCH access to their own mailing list databases.

73. Third, PCH rented and/or exchanged its mailing lists containing Plaintiffs' and the Class's Private Purchase Information—enhanced with additional information from data aggregators and appenders—to third parties, including other consumer-facing companies, direct-mail advertisers, and organizations soliciting monetary contributions, volunteer work, and votes.

74. Because the mailing lists included the additional information from the data aggregators and appenders, the lists were more valuable, and PCH was able to increase its profits gained from the mailing list rentals and/or exchanges.

75. By renting, exchanging, or otherwise disclosing its customer lists during the relevant pre-July 31, 2016 time period, PCH disclosed to persons other than Plaintiffs and the Class members records or information concerning their purchases of written materials, sound recordings, and/or video recordings from PCH. See PPPA § 2.

76. The information PCH disclosed indicates Plaintiffs' and Class members' names and addresses, as well as the fact that they purchased particular written materials (including but not limited to subscriptions to particular magazines), sound records, and/or video recordings. Accordingly, the records or information disclosed by PCH indicated Plaintiffs' and the Class members' identities. See PPPA

77. Plaintiffs and the members of the Class never consented to PCH disclosing their Private Purchase Information to anyone.

78. Worse yet, Plaintiffs and the members of the Class did not receive notice before PCH disclosed their Private Purchase Information to third parties.

79. PCH's disclosures of Plaintiffs' and the Class's Private Purchase Information during the relevant pre-July 31, 2016 time period were not made pursuant to a court order, search warrant, or grand jury subpoena.

80. PCH's disclosures of Plaintiffs' and the Class's Private Purchase Information during the relevant pre-July 31, 2016 time period were not made to collect payment for the written materials, sound recordings, and/or video recordings they purchased.

81. PCH's disclosures of Plaintiffs' and the Class's Private Purchase Information during the relevant pre-July 31, 2016 time period were made to data aggregators, data appenders, data cooperatives, direct-mail advertisers, and organizations soliciting monetary contributions, volunteer work, and votes—all in order to increase PCH's revenue. Accordingly, PCH's disclosures were not made for the exclusive purpose of marketing goods and services directly to Plaintiffs and the members of the Class.

82. By disclosing Plaintiffs' and the Class's Private Purchase Information during the relevant pre-July 31, 2016 time period, PCH violated Plaintiffs' and the Class's statutorily protected right to privacy in their reading, listening, and viewing habits. See PPPA § 2.

83. As a result of PCH's unlawful disclosures of their Private Purchase Information, Plaintiffs and the members of the Class have suffered invasions of their statutorily protected right to privacy (afforded by the PPPA). On behalf of themselves and the Class, Plaintiffs seek: (1) $5,000.00 to each of the Plaintiffs and each Class member pursuant to PPPA § 5(a); and (2) costs and reasonable attorneys' fees pursuant to PPPA § 5(b).

PRAYER FOR RELIEF

WHEREFORE, Plaintiffs, individually and on behalf of all others similarly situated, seek a judgment against Defendant as follows:

- A. For an order certifying the Class under Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and naming Plaintiffs as representatives of the Class and Plaintiffs' attorneys as Class Counsel to represent the Class;
- B. For an order declaring that Defendant's conduct as described herein violated the PPPA;
- C. For an order finding in favor of Plaintiffs and the Class on all counts asserted herein;
- D. For an award of $5,000 to each of the Plaintiffs and each Class member, as provided by the Preservation of Personal Privacy Act, PPPA § 5(a);
- E. For prejudgment interest on all amounts awarded; and

- F. For an order awarding Plaintiffs and the Class their reasonable attorneys' fees and expenses and costs of suit.

JURY DEMAND

Plaintiffs demand a trial by jury on all causes of action and issues so triable.
